ShowImage	Only call addTransformation(description) if there's an image in a container to be transformed.	Transformation will be computed and executed. No need to control if the description is valid. The transformation does not have to keep the image in its container.
Transform	Set the correct new values of a transformed image. Decide what to do with invalid descriptions. Decide what to do if an ordered transformation will bring the image out of its container.	No need to handle case when there's no image or no container.
